

Ducula goliath ou Carpophage géant ou Notou

Le Carpophage géant ou Notou (Ducula goliath) est une espèce d'oiseau de la famille des Columbidae, endémique de la Nouvelle-Calédonie. Il vit dans les forêts humides tropicales de la Grande Terre et se nourrit principalement de fruits et de baies.

Le Notou a la particularité d'être le plus gros pigeon arboricole au monde (d'où son autre nom de Pigeon impérial de Nouvelle-Calédonie) : il mesure de 50 à 52 cm de longueur et peut peser plus d'un kilogramme (en général 600 à 720 g). Il ne présente pas de dimorphisme sexuel. Sa couleur est gris ardoisé, avec des nuances argentées sur le cou, la poitrine et les ailes. Des taches pourpre foncé marquent les ailes. Le ventre est châtain, la région anale et les sous-caudales sont roux pâle. La queue est gris ardoise foncé avec une bande transversale châtain. Le bec est rouge avec l'extrémité corne. Les yeux sont orangés à rouges. Les pattes sont rouges.

Cet oiseau consomme essentiellement des fruits et des baies et accessoirement quelques graines.

Le Notou est aujourd'hui menacé de disparition à cause de l'action de l'homme. La régression de son habitat naturel et la chasse (autorisée les samedis et dimanches du 1er avril au 30 avril inclus, dans la limite de 5 Notous par jour et par chasseur) mettent en péril l'existence de cet animal. De plus, la reproduction du notou est difficile, sachant que la femelle ne pond le plus souvent qu'un seul œuf par an, en octobre ou novembre.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. This includes not only sales and purchases but also any other financial activities that may occur during the course of the business. It is essential to ensure that all records are kept in a secure and accessible location, and that they are regularly reviewed and updated.

In addition, it is important to ensure that all records are properly classified and indexed, so that they can be easily retrieved when needed. This will help to ensure that the business is able to provide accurate and timely information to its stakeholders, and that it is able to identify and address any potential issues or discrepancies in its records.

The second part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all assets and liabilities. This includes not only physical assets such as property and equipment, but also intangible assets such as patents and trademarks. It is essential to ensure that all assets and liabilities are properly valued and recorded, and that they are regularly reviewed and updated.

In addition, it is important to ensure that all assets and liabilities are properly secured and protected, so that they are not lost or damaged. This will help to ensure that the business is able to maintain its assets and liabilities in good condition, and that it is able to identify and address any potential issues or discrepancies in its records.

The third part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all income and expenses. This includes not only sales and purchases, but also any other financial activities that may occur during the course of the business. It is essential to ensure that all income and expenses are properly recorded and reported, and that they are regularly reviewed and updated.

In addition, it is important to ensure that all income and expenses are properly classified and indexed, so that they can be easily retrieved when needed. This will help to ensure that the business is able to provide accurate and timely information to its stakeholders, and that it is able to identify and address any potential issues or discrepancies in its records.

The fourth part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all tax-related information. This includes not only sales and purchases, but also any other financial activities that may occur during the course of the business. It is essential to ensure that all tax-related information is properly recorded and reported, and that it is regularly reviewed and updated.

In addition, it is important to ensure that all tax-related information is properly classified and indexed, so that it can be easily retrieved when needed. This will help to ensure that the business is able to provide accurate and timely information to its stakeholders, and that it is able to identify and address any potential issues or discrepancies in its records.